BROTHERS MEET AFTER 48 YEARS ALL STOMACH DISTRESS Romance of Two Rutland Men, Long

Rutland, Oct. 1 .- After having been separated for nearly half a century, and each believing the other dead long years ago, Thomas and William Pickering brothers, aged respectively 60 and 72, met last evening by accident at the Esmon botel, says the Duluth, Minn., News Tribune of September 27.

The meeting came about when the latter arrived in the hotel for a night's lodging. On looking over the register, he noticed that another man of the sume name had registered there on Sunday. Believing that the other was his brother, he lost no time in looking for him and met him returning from a visit to friends in the West End. The story of the brothers' separation is very pathetic. Early in 1861 on the second call from the government for troops, they had enlisted in a Vermont regiment. Their parents at that time vere living on a small farm near Rut-
